

From <http://www.foxnews.com/us/2010/06/17/afghan-military-deserters-missing-air-force-base/>:

The Afghans were attending the Defense Language Institute at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas. The DLI program teaches English to military pilot candidates and other air force prospects from foreign countries allied with the U.S. "I can confirm that 17 have gone missing from the Defense Language Institute," said Gary Emery, Chief of Public Affairs, 37th Training Wing, at Lackland AFB. "They disappeared over the course of the last two years..."

**TWO YEARS! And we're only hearing about this now? And "Each of the missing Afghans was issued a Department of Defense Common Access Card, an identification card used to gain access to secure military installations." Well, crap... There go another 3000 of our brothers and sisters.

From http://news.yahoo.com/s/ap/20100618/ap\_on\_re\_us/us\_immigration\_law\_clinton:

Arizona Gov. Jan Brewer said Thursday she's angry over comments by Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton that the Obama administration will sue the state (of Arizona) over its new immigration law. In a June 8 media interview in Ecuador... Clinton said President Barack Obama thinks the federal government should determine immigration policy and that the Justice Department "will be bringing a lawsuit against the act." ...It's unclear why Clinton made the comment since it's not her area. She couldn't be reached Thursday for comment. Brewer said in a statement that "this is no way to treat the people of Arizona. To learn of this lawsuit through an Ecuadorian interview with the secretary of state is just outrageous," she said. "If our own government intends to sue our state to prevent illegal immigration enforcement, the least it can do is inform us before it informs the citizens of another nation."

Obama's going to sue Arizona for enforcing current law? If he wins, does that mean a de facto striking down of Federal Immigration Law since it basically says the same thing as the Arizona law?

From <http://republicanwhip.house.gov/YouCut/>:

In 2008, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) reported that over 97,000 federal employees were delinquent on their federal income taxes, owing a total of $1 billion in unpaid taxes. This includes 1,151 employees at the Department of Treasury -- which oversees the IRS -- who owe $7 million.

Wow. My company got audited a couple of years ago. After searching 6 years' worth of records, the auditor found a .03c mistake, and then proudly announced she was entering in the records an "error audit." I then asked when I was going to get the money back. She stood there, dumbfounded for a moment before she finally asked what I meant. I said, "The error is in your favor... I paid three cents too much. When do I get it back?" She told me I wasn't getting anything back. The decision wasn't hers to make, and the "judgment" wasn't legal since they owed three cents. Period. But I guess that doesn't make a lot of difference to tax-law-enforcers who refuse to pay their own taxes.

It's totally out of control. Someone needs to offer a plan of action that makes sense and is feasible. Going to the polls and voting out most (all?) incumbents isn't enough. There are too many issues to fix. It's like we need to back up a little more than 40 years, when Kennedy got away with the Chappaquiddick incident and then... What do you mean, "The Chappaquiddick incident?" Chappaquiddick! It was when Senator Ted Kennedy who was married at the time, drove his car off a bridge, and then Mary Jo Kopechne, who was in the car with him, drowned. "Oh... a terrible accident, I'm sure..." BZZZZP! Wrong answer. But thank you for playing. THEY plunged off the bridge, HE claimed he tried to save her but it was too late, HE left her there in the car and went back to a party house, there was a phone at the party house but NO ONE used it... Later testimony by a rescue diver indicates she didn't drown and, in fact, breathed air trapped inside the car with her for

TWO HOURS before she used up the air. Then Kennedy (exhausted and in shock, he claimed) swam FIVE HUNDRED FEET across a channel to go back to his motel room. What? Yeah... just read the article. It's gets worse. [<http://www.coverups.com/greatcoverups/teddy-chappaquiddick.htm>] Kennedy was sentenced to 2 months... and even that was suspended. She died. He walked. And then he became one of the most powerful men in the country.

Yes. I know it all started before Kennedy. But that might have been a good time to wake the freak up. That MIGHT have been a good time for a few million people to say, "Oh no you don't! She died. You're responsible. And I don't care if your name is Kennedy, Dupont, Ford, or Smith."

Back to what I was saying about backing up at least 40 years, and calling bullshit by its proper name; BULLSHIT!

Obama is full of BULLSHIT. So are Pelosi, Reid, Clinton (both of 'em), and most others who are in office, all the way to the City Dog Catcher who was caught (forgive the pun) selling Pit Bulls for fighting.

I feel like we're looking at someone who has every disease on the face of the earth, and then trying to remedy the situation with an aspirin. Yay... the headache's almost gone... Too bad your nose just fell off... and you're paralyzed... and you have ass cancer... and you're in excruciating pain everywhere else...

Have you ever prepared a meal, and just about everything went wrong? The cheese dip curdled, the gravy was full of flour balls, the sour cream had something greenish-black growing on it, and the 1-1/2" thick steak had a 1"-thick layer of burned crud on it? Did you scrape off the crud, leaving a thin slice of meat that tasted of burnt cardboard? Did you put the flour in the blender and try to smooth it out? Did you dip the mold off the sour cream? Did you try to tell the diners that curdled queso was all the rage?

Or did you admit it was a train wreck and THROW IT ALL OUT? Then, once you tossed it, didn't you start from scratch? That's what we have to do. The entire government is burned, curdled, molded and just basically rotten. It can't be fixed. There's no such thing as reversing soured milk... Toss it. Start over.

The only question is, "How?" Perhaps we should take a lesson from history. There was a real problem with the government back in the mid- to late-1700's. Then they fixed it. (Of course the main problem with the government was that it wasn't OUR government. It was Britain's.) So, how did they fix it? Well first they opened their eyes. Then they decided that maintaining the status quo for the sake of supposed peace just wasn't worth it. Then they realized that the toll it would take to "put things to rights" would be high, but that their children and grandchildren would reap the benefits. Then they took action.

You see, that's most of the problem. We accept the unacceptable today, at the EXPENSE of our children and grandchildren. That apathetic self-serving pattern must be reversed! We have to be willing to accept OUR discomfort today, for the betterment of tomorrow. Selfishness has to go out the window. What's the right thing to do? I have to ask myself, "What am I willing to sacrifice in order to ensure the safety, freedom and very lives of my children?" The answer is everything. Absolutely everything.